RULE OR BYLAW CHANGE SUGGESTIONS?

If you have UMECRA rule or bylaw changes, ideas for new rules or rule removal suggestions, please submit them to the rules & bylaws committee before the November UMECRA board meeting. It's easier for the Rules & Bylaws Committee to craft language beforehand, check it against other rules, etc. before submitting it to the whole board for a vote at that meeting. AND if you mentioned something to us in the past few months or weeks on the trail, in the vet check or around the campfire, shoot us off an email reminder of what you wanted as a change so that we know we have your request.

Rules & Bylaw Committee members are Tony Troyer - il4aerc@aol.com – phone 815-539-7375 , Wel Elford – wselsfor@sbcglobal.net – phone 920-387-2304 , or Theresa Meyer – tmeyer@tpt.org – phone 763-753-5236 .

The rules and bylaws can be found on www.umecra.com under the About link then, scroll down to the bottom of the page and there is a “button” for each one.

Thanks!

UPDATE ON POINT CHASER LOCATION:

Hello to all,

Well the votes are in and it was overwhelming that people would like to see Point Chaser held at Governor Knowles this year. Unfortunately, after lots of phone calls and research; it just does not look like it will work out at that location. I have tried to make it happen but every time I think I have issues worked out a new problem comes up. Probably the biggest issue is several other events already scheduled to be using the same trails that same weekend.

So with that being said; Point Chaser will be at Zumbro Bottoms this year. Zumbro has a lot to offer, the campground is very large (site reservations are not needed), there is a nice picnic pavillion and we will have plenty of well water for all. There are many overhead ties for the horses and lots of room for pens too.

The trails are absolutely beautiful with some wonderful vista overlooks and some lowland trails near the river. I will work very hard to incorporate the loops with a variety of terrain without making the course too challenging. As always, we will strive to make it an enjoyable event for all.

Hope to see you all there!

Holly & Bob

THE BONNIE TOBIAS VET'S CHOICE AWARD

Bonnie Tobias was an active member of GLDRA, UMECRA and AERC for many years. Several years ago Bonnie was diagnosed with cancer and sadly, she lost her battle with the disease on August 2, 2011.

Bonnie lived life to the fullest. She always had a positive attitude as well as a deep passion for the things she loved to do, and a fighting spirit to persevere in all she did. Bonnie could always be counted on to speak her mind on the issues.

Bonnie will be missed and remembered for her efforts in GLDRA. She served as Master of Ceremonies at the annual Awards Banquet for many years. She loved music and her husband Mike and sons performed with their band at the annual Awards Banquet many times. Additionally, Bonnie created the "Pit Crew of the Year Award" which has become a popular annual prize.

Bonnie loved competitive and endurance riding and hosted numerous clinics featuring our sport at horse expositions in Michigan. She also was the first to hold a night ride in Allegan, Michigan.

Bonnie was the ride manager for the Oak Leaf Run Ride for many years. This was one of the first rides of the season, held in April, and she always made it special. She even had a Reverend hold a ceremony performing the "Blessing of the Horses" for the upcoming ride season. Additionally, Bonnie had a special award at her rides called the "Vet's Choice Award". Criteria for the winning horse are good manners, attitude and show of team work with the rider. The Veterinarian chooses the horse he/she feels best meets these requirements and represents the distance horse. The winner is not necessarily the first place horse or the horse completing the most miles.

Starting with the October, 2011 Oak Leaf Run Ride, the Vet's Choice Award will be named the "Bonnie Tobias Vet's Choice Award" in memory of Bonnie.

IS YOUR HORSE'S BIT HARMFUL TO HIS MOUTH?

by: Casie Bazay, BS, NBCAAM
August 17 2011, Article # 18688

When behavioral problems arise with riding horses, owners undoubtedly will search for solutions. But many horse owners don't think to look their horse in the mouth for an answer. According to recent study results, the bit could be the cause of more behavioral problems and ailments than many owners currently recognize.

W. Robert Cook, FRCVS, PhD, completed a study recently in which he compared 66 domestic horse skulls and 12 wild horse skulls in four U.S. Natural History Museum collections for differences in structure near the point where the bit contacts the skull.

A five-point grading scale was used to document bit-induced bone spurs on the bars of the mouth (grade 1 being normal and grade 5 the most abnormal). Bone spurs are outgrowths on the bars of the mouth, akin to splints on the cannon bone. The first cheek teeth in the lower jaw are the first to be damaged due to their close proximity to the bit, so the frequency of dental damage was based on these.

Key findings of the study included:

- 62% of the domestic horse skulls had bone spurs on the bars of the mouth;
- 61% of the domestic horse skulls exhibited erosion of the first lower cheek tooth;
- 88% of the domestic horse skulls showed evidence of either bone or dental damage;
- As the grade of bone spur formation increased from 1 to 5, so did the frequency of dental damage; and
- No bone spurs or dental damage was found in any of the 12 wild horses skulls.

Cook suggests that if behavioral problems arise in riding horses, owners and trainers should consider the bit as a cause along with other possibilities. He added that a veterinarian or equine dentist can check for evidence of bit damage in a horse's mouth.

Get the latest information and resources on common behavior problems and approaches to behavior modification in the breakthrough work Understanding Horse Behavior.

Cook, who developed and patented the crossunder Bitless Bridle, noted, "There is a simple way for an owner to find out whether any particular behavioral problem (could be) caused by the bit: Try a nonbitted bridle and see if the horse's behavior improves."

The study, "Damage by the bit to the equine interdental space and second lower premolar," was published in February 2011 in Equine Veterinary Education.

Management Practices Could Help Reduce Cribbing

by: Michigan State University College of Agriculture
September 01 2011, Article # 18759

www.thehorse.com A recently published analysis of nearly 20 years of research on cribbing will provide horse owners with valuable information about the behavior and ideas for management practices that could reduce the frequency of this undesirable equine habit.

"Owners of cribbers seem genuinely interested in the behavior and are eager to learn about how they may better manage their horses," said Carissa Wickens, assistant professor and equine Extension specialist at the University of Delaware. Wickens conducted the cribbing research analysis as a part of her doctoral program at Michigan State University (MSU), which she completed in 2009.

Cribbing is a behavior in which horses anchor their top teeth onto some fixed object, such as a fence or stall wall, pull backward, contract their neck muscles, and take air into their esophagus, resulting in an audible grunt.

The behavior is known as a stereotypy--a repetitive behavior without any apparent reason or purpose. Viewed by many horse owners as problematic, cribbing can lead to dental problems, weight loss, and poor conditions in horses exhibiting the behavior. Estimates put 4.5% of U.S. horses, or as many as 414,000, as cribbers.

"I think if we can better understand cribbing behavior, especially the cause(s) of cribbing, we may be able to identify horses that are at risk and make improvements as necessary to their management, which would ultimately allow us to further reduce the number of horses that exhibit this and other stereotypic behaviors," Wickens said.

Through analyzing the vast amount of research conducted on cribbing since the 1990s, Wickens found that the behavior likely has multiple causes and might result from a complex combination of or interaction between factors including genetics, gastrointestinal and brain physiology, and the horse's environment and management. According to Wickens, horse owners can reduce cribbing behavior if they put certain management practices in place.

"I think possibly the most important message for horse owners is that the manner in which we house and manage our horses can have a tremendous impact on their behavior," she said.

Many of the studies Wickens analyzed provided evidence that limiting a horse's ability to engage in foraging and social behavior increases the risk of stereotypic behaviors such as cribbing. There are also some strong associations between cribbing and the horse's diet; horses fed high-concentrate and low-forage diets may be at greater risk for developing stereotypic behavior.

"Once a horse becomes a cribber or crib-biter, it is unlikely that the horse will ever completely stop performing this behavior despite attempts from the owner to stop the horse from cribbing," Wickens explained. "However, providing the horse with ample forage, turnout into the pasture, and opportunities to socialize with other horses may be helpful in reducing the frequency of the behavior or the amount of time the horse spends cribbing."

While no one has reported direct economic losses due to cribbing, surveyed owners perceive that cribbing has a negative effect on the monetary value of their horses as many people will not buy a known cribber. Additionally, many owners try to physically prevent horses from cribbing through the use of cribbing collars and muzzles, electric fencing, distasteful treatments or paint on wooden surfaces, nutritional supplements, and even surgery. Those costs, in addition to costs associated with dental work and the extra energy a horse spends cribbing instead of grazing, could be reduced if owners implement beneficial management practices.

Wickens believes there is still work to be done to further investigate cribbing behavior. While some clues exist, the underlying mechanism behind the behavior still needs to be explained completely. The information researchers currently have could also apply to stereotypic behavior prevention and management in other species. Since the horse genome is available to scientists, cribbing could provide an ideal case study on the relationship between genetics and the environment in the development of stereotypic behavior in horses.

Equine 'Thumps' Are More than Mere Hiccups

by: University of Illinois College of Agriculture
August 05 2008, Article # 12446

One of the best known cures for relieving someone of the hiccups is a good, old-fashioned scare. However, what do you do when it seems that your horse has a case of the hiccups? Sneaking up behind a 1,000 pound Thoroughbred and yelling "Boo!," is not advisable for several reasons. For one, you might get a surprise of your own.

The medical term for the noise we commonly refer to as hiccups is synchronous diaphragmatic flutter or singultus. But in horses it has been specifically called thumps since 1831 when a veterinarian first reported a thumping noise coming from the abdomen of a horse that just ran 13 miles.

"Thumps in and of itself is not a problem," said Cristobal Navas de Solís, LV, an equine internal medicine resident at the University of Illinois Veterinary Teaching Hospital. "But if a horse does have thumps, there is usually an underlying cause that needs to be treated."

Many horses that present with the anomaly are endurance athletes that have an electrolyte imbalance and significant fluid loss after an exhaustive workout. For example, thumps is common in Arabian horses competing in long distance races that last 25, 50, or even 100 miles.

"Typically these patients are dehydrated and have low blood calcium levels," mentioned Navas de Solís, "but once you treat the underlying problem the thumps usually disappear on their own."

Thumps in horses, and hiccups in humans, although both referred to as synchronous diaphragmatic flutter to the medical experts in each field, are slightly different variations upon the same theme. For one, hiccups in humans are not commonly associated with electrolyte imbalances.

Secondly, the location from which we hear the characteristic noise coming also differs in horse and man. The "hic" we hear in humans is caused by the closure of the vocal chords after the diaphragm spasmodically contracts, quickly inflating the lungs. In horses, however, veterinarians and owners that have witnessed the ailment can attest that the abnormal noise comes from the animal's side.

Low blood calcium levels are the classic abnormality associated with thumps. This may make the phrenic nerve, which runs along both sides of the heart and controls diaphragm movements, more easily excitable. But it is also a good idea to check all electrolyte levels, especially magnesium, potassium, sodium, and chlorine.

In a typical scenario with a dehydrated horse and abnormal electrolyte levels, the phrenic nerve might begin to fire at the rate at which the atria of the heart contract. In short, the nerve is inappropriately obeying firing instructions from the heart, instead of the brain, to control diaphragm movements.

"Usually we see the horse's abdomen contract 40-50 times per minute," said Navas de Solís. Typically, each contraction occurs at the same time the heart beats, but in rare cases that does not always happen, nor do the thumps have to occur on both sides of the horse.

Although hiccups in humans are quite harmless, thumps in horses are usually linked to an abnormality that warrants attention. If you hear the telltale sounds--and don't suspect your horse has merely gotten into the Kentucky bourbon--contact your veterinarian as soon as possible.--Ashley Mitek, University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine
