Rules & Bylaws Suggestions or Changes

The last months of the 2023 season are on the horizon and the board is planning the November Board of Directors Meeting. It is time to submit any rule or bylaw change suggestions to the Rules & Bylaws Committee. This committee takes those suggestions, looks at current and past language, AERC rules when appropriate, and considers horse welfare and other issues in crafting wording to make sure your idea is presented at the November meeting.

Please contact us if you have change suggestions or new rule ideas:

Why I Ride Competitive....

I'll start out with this is just my opinion and not everyone will agree with me. That's okay! I know a lot of people think Competitive is too fussy and they hate trotting circles with their horses! I'm not the biggest fan of running in circles either BUT I also know the vets get a much better look at your horse if you move them in a circle - which is probably why they make people do circles when judging Best Condition for LD or Endurance!

Why are competitive rules so fussy? They are all about creating an even playing field for the horses. It's also a very strategic event - one where the rider really needs to know how to manage their horse to get the best score possible. I personally love the strategic side of Competitive rides!

So what are the rules some people think might be too fussy?

- Not being able to make forward motion without being on your horse, makes for consistency in the competition. A rider who can get off and run with their horse would have a big advantage over someone who stays in the saddle for the whole ride.

- Having to maintain forward motion after the 2 mile marker - again, it's a rule that provides a more level playing field in the competition. Horses will have at least 2 miles of movement before they come in - it's up to the rider how fast they need to go and they can adjust their speed based on how much time they need to get in on time and what is best for their horse, but they need to keep moving.

From my perspective, Competitive offers a number of advantages especially when starting a new horse or if you are new to the sport.

- It helps the rider focus on developing a reasonable pace without the temptation to just go fast. Most comp ride times are set to ensure that you can't dawdle, but also can't run the legs off your horse either. It helps to teach the rider how to pace their ride, especially important with new horses and riders.
- It's a great learning opportunity for teaching your horse how to trot circles in preparation for Best Conditioning judging for LD or Endurance.
- It teaches your horse how to travel nicely in a small group of strange horses.
- As a rider, you can chose to ride with different people at each ride and you get to know more people which is wonderful for newer competitors.
- If your horse is a little off at the end of a competition, you can still get credit for the ride with completion points and miles (assuming your horse meets the stated criteria).
- And probably the most important reason to me is that it can prevent "race brain" from setting in for you and your horse.

Now there are lots of people who ride LD and Endurance who do just fine without starting in Competitive, but there are a lot of horses that would have benefitted from Competitive before they moved on to the other events. I believe starting a horse in Novice, then progressing to Competitive is a great way to develop your horse mentally and physically for LD or Endurance.
