4-day SUPER-DRAW ride in September

DRAW I has been rescheduled for Thursday, Sept. 25th and Friday, Sept. 26th at Horseman's Campground, in Palmyra, WI. There will be a 50 on Thursday, with LD, Comp, and Drives both days. A novice ride will be offered on Friday. DRAW IV will follow on Saturday and Sunday. One trip, one location, for two rides worth of points and miles!! Load the horses, pack the spouse and don't forget the kids! Come join us in Palmyra!!

Point Chaser Rescheduled to Oct. 17-19.

Due to partial trail closure due to state youth hunt. A note about camping reservations: apparently the whole park is not closed to horses, only part of it, so they are not waiving camping reservation change fees if you already made a reservation. You can still change your reservation, but you have to pay the fees.)

Endure for the Cure - 2008

By Bryn Iten

The best adventures are the unplanned and unexpected. At the Endure for the Cure AHDRA II Endurance and Competitive Ride and Drive I experienced one I will never forget. Tony Troyer, a great horseman and an even better friend set the fun in motion on Saturday, the second day of the ride by asking if I would be willing to be a passenger/ groom for his Sunday 12 mi. competitive team drive. Having agreed to volunteer for the entire three day ride event, I accepted his offer as soon as the question was in the air. "YES!!!"

Saturday night I helped vet-in the real stars of the show. I was well acquainted with both Tony's National Show Horse mare City girl and Arabian cross Junior although I had never seen them in harness.

Sunday morning found us harnessing up, feeling the anticipation and excitement being channeled through the horses even though it was round two for both of them. Due to storms on Friday the trail had been re-routed on Saturday and changed back to the original for Sunday. So it was a new trail for all participants involved.

We left camp at 8:50 am with only one "oh crap!" glitch "Wait! That's the left rein and this is the right one!" Tony offered a stream of apologies for the confusion. At least he had his reins attached, a detail I have overlooked on several ride camp exits with thankfully only humorous results.

We headed out on Cinder Road a nice two track fire road that goes through the heart of the park. Shortly we took a "haw" which I quickly, after almost falling out of the cart, learned means left onto a large open prairie also known as "Lower Creek side Prairie." This prairie contains steep inclined trails, a horrendous ditch and on this occasion a photographer. Under Tony's guidance which is 99 percent voice and 1 percent rein contact, we were able to enjoy the beauty of the trail and of course the horses in their element. The man popping out of the bushes and tall grass making mechanical noises did not even receive a second glance from the horses. Lower Creek Side Prairie reconnected with Cinder Road and we traveled along two tracks once again at an even pace.

In camp I was assigned navigation responsibilities, something I felt very confident about. This is my "home park" and I have ridden every distance and type of ride offered at AHDRA II Endure for the Cure, minus the driving. Traveling down a fire road a rider enters another prairie appropriately named "Muddy Meadow" skirting the perimeter and turning onto a trail that connects it with another two track. Tony followed my directions, letting the horses move out along the edge of Muddy Meadow.

At one point we pulled into the actual field to allow three competitive riders to pass us heading in the opposite direction. Always having been the rider in these situations it was a very good eye opening and humbling experience. Horses in carts are just as excited and unpredictable when encountering new horses on the trails as those under saddle but seem often expected to remain perfectly still in this type of situations.

Our encounter and my revelation over, we continued on at which point Tony following my directions sent the horses down the connector trail that all riders in the competition take. It starts out innocently, two track through woods with a little mud but quickly Tony was managing the team through ridges, ditches, ruts and two creeks full of rocks. Treacherous terrain in any situation. As we bounce and jar it occurs to me that a serious miscalculation had occurred in my navigation plans. I am following the trails as if in one of the riding events, single person on top of single horse, NOT a two horse wide team pulling a two person cart. Tony somehow remained calm and collected which kept the horses on track and managing amazingly well.

This kind of behavior and performance by horses can only be attributed to their phenomenal endless trust that Tony has earned from them. Through all this I am so in awe of Tony's horse's teamwork and handling of the horrendous trail. I easily forget that I should be scared even when the grand finale of the trial comes. At the end of the connector trail stand large trees on either side of a trail now diminished to around eight feet wide. A large mound of earth rests here too. Tony stops the horses, gets off keeping the

UMECRA youth represent at Young Riders Championship

Three young UMECRA riders participated in the North American Young Riders Championships, held the last week of July, in Parker, CO. Ashley Van Raalte, Jordon Fleege and Caitlyn Massman competed in the FEI 75 Mile Endurance Ride. Ashley was not able to complete the ride, however, Jordon and Caitlyn both completed in the placings. They were accompanied to the event by Grace Ramsey.

Bonnie & Loki's Big No-Tevis Adventure

Chip Jack submitted this story from Bonnie Mielke, describing what happened after Bonnie found out Tevis was cancelled (she was somewhere in Nebraska) and decided to go on to Bighorn instead.....

I did have a very nice trip, though with the exception of about 4 hrs. I was riding Loki on the BLM land near the ranch where I was staying when we separated. He freaked when I came off - not knowing where he was and it's SOOOO big there (the bigness bothered him). He took off, ran for about 8 miles, numerous people tried to catch him (like when he blew through the parking lot of a gypsum plant). He finally ended up in a box canyon, thank goodness, and I think finally slowed down enough for his brain to start functioning and realized that he would never find his happy home unless he let someone catch him. A railroad guy caught him and took him to a woman nearby who raised goats. She put him in a pen and called the sheriff. We were searching on 4 wheelers, but never would have found him - he went too far. All that was left on him was his saddle, under his belly. How he got a biothane breast collar off is beyond me. It took us 45 min. to drive there to pick him up.

I had him checked over by a vet and she said he was fine, but when I went to load him on Friday to go to the ride site (it was too awful to go there any earlier - dirt and prickly pear on a hill top) he was dead lame. I walked him every 2 hours all day and he got a little better. I had a massage therapist look at him. She couldn't pinpoint anything that would make him so lame. SO, I loaded up on Saturday and came home. When we got to the first stop, in SD, he was sound coming off the trailer, galloped, did his big trot, bucked, etc. I called the massagist and told her and she said that he probably just takes a little longer than most for the pains to rise to the surface. Why can't he be normal and get sore after 2 days??

SO, I had a nice trip, rode in some beautiful places, got to spend time with my little sis, met a ton of really nice people, especially the people at the ranch in Greybull where we spent a week, and got to drive - a lot.

Bonnie and Loki still hope to attempt the Tevis in the future.

RIDER HINT #129

I was at Petsmart, when I noticed the machine they had up front for making your own dog tags. I purchased two 3-line dog tags, with the first line being the horse's name and my name, the second line being my home phone#, the third line being my cell phone#. I put one of the tags on the side ring of his halter, in case Arie escapes from the pasture at home or, more likely, escapes from the picket line at a ride! The other tag goes on a d-ring on my saddle in case we get separated out on trails! Seems a very cheap way of helping you get your horse back!

Max Bernsdorf's Big Bad Bike Ride

Some years back...I decided to take up bike riding again. Bought a brand new bike, took it to Boulder Junction ride and went riding down the nice bike trail with Pam Cotton. That nasty bike threw me into the swamp! For the last two years it has been hanging from the ceiling of the garage gathering dust. Yesterday, Grandson Austin came to visit. "Hey Grandma. We haven't ridden to Kewaunee Custard in a long time. Let's go tomorrow." "Sure," I replied. "Just help me get my bike down and air into the tires." (It is only a 10 mile round trip.) He was here at 11 AM today and I had that bike ready to go. Followed him down the highway to the first turn (I wore my helmet!) He stopped. I didn't. Ran into the back of his bike and wiped out. "Grandma. You got to use the brakes!" Got up brushed off the gravel stones and said, "I CAN do this!" Off we went down a back road along the lake. Saw hundreds of bikes coming toward us????? It was a 150 mile bike race going in the opposite direction.

"Austin, what if I can't make it up the hill? I will be soooooo embarrassed." "I will wait for you on the top," replied Austin.

Made it to the custard stand, fortified with cheese fries and a chocolate sundae, and started back. The race bikes were now still coming and going in our same direction. Headed home! Half way back Austin's Dad drove past looking for us. He stopped behind us. I didn't see him. Austin stopped. I didn't. Another rear end collision and I was laying on the ground with both legs, elbow and heel of hand bleeding. "Grandma, you got to use the right brake!" Remember the race? They have a truck following to make sure everyone is OK. It stopped and the driver yelled, "I have first aid." "Never mind! I am just fine!" I replied as I lay there bleeding and embarrassed! "Don't worry Grandma. I'll stay with you till we get to the highway," said my helpful Grandson. We got to the highway, he scooted home, I pushed my bike through traffic. (Sunday afternoon tourists leaving Door CO), parked that bike in the barn, washed gravel stones from my wounds and hobbled to the horse trailer for bandaids.

I think I had better stick to riding horses!

Max, you know what can happen when you take a horse out on the trail after a long time off. Why did you think your bike would act any differently? - Editor horses at a halt, calculates, hops back on, and maneuvers them through the impossible obstacle with such cool confident movements I am left completely speechless. Which is a change from only seconds earlier when I was urgently asking Tony if my assistance was needed to maneuver the horses somehow. Of course it didn't sound like that as the words, "Tony? Do I need to get out?" are what came out of my mouth in a high pitched voice.

Once on the two track we had a nice few miles of letting the horses go, doing what they love. The two track forks and curving right leads up a large steep hill known as Horse Hill that opens up into another prairie called Upper Prairie. Halfway through charging up Horse Hill Tony halts the horses. Junior's harness clip has unsnapped and the front bar is swinging unattached. Tony has me grab the lead ropes from the back and steady the horses as some quick engineering with electric tape and wire reattach the snap.

Once on the field we make two uneventful loops around the perimeter The awesome scenery and company making the time pass at super speed. Heading down Horse Hill, we take the two track back to our first prairie, Lower Creek Side, covering the perimeter at a fast clip that is a rush like none other.

Done with the prairie, its all on Cinder Road back to camp. Sloshing through two large creeks we reach the two mile marker with a nice amount of time to relax the horses. Upon returning to camp, I bail off to speed to the bathroom, another revelation about driving versus riding for me.

We unhitch the horses who quietly stand grabbing bites of grass when possible as they wait for their P/R's and exit exams. Tony and I take the horses back to the trailer. Once horse free, I thank him for one of the most exhilarating and fun adventures I have had via a huge hug with tons of "Thank you Thank you Thank you."

Later at awards Tony received not only the first place but the turtle award as well, being the only driver. The team competitive driving was something I will never forget. It was an experience that confirms for me that so much fun can be had at an endurance race even if you are horseless and volunteering.

Note: It is great to get the perspective of a passenger and rider at one of our events. I want to thank Bryn for her delightful story of her ride with Tony.

I'd also like to point out that the severe weather had caused the ride managers to cancel the Saturday drive, but because Tony was on the grounds with his horses they did go ahead and re-route the drive. Our apologies to Claire Hill who had planned to drive on Saturday.

One last note regarding the break down which was the neck yoke popping out of the snap. This was caused when the keeper on the snap was tweaked on the 'missed' trail mentioned in the story.

GOT DUCT TAPE?

Please see www.ducktapesavestheday.com for the 2008 Duck Tape Saves the Day Contest. Your story could win $5,000. That's a lot of gas money, and I bet some of you have some great stories (who doesn't have a roll of duct tape in their trailer or truck?), so give it a try.

From the Rules Committee:

If you have UMECRA rule or bylaw changes, ideas for new rules or rule removal suggestions, please submit them to the rules & bylaws committee before the November UMECRA board meeting. It's easier for the Rules & Bylaws Committee to craft language beforehand, check it against other rules, etc. before submitting it to the whole board for a vote at that meeting. Rules & Bylaw Committee members are Tony Troyer - il4aerc@aol.com - phone 815-539-7375, Wel Elford - wselsfor@sbcglobal.net - phone 920-387-2304, or Theresa Meyer - tmeyer@tpt.org - Phone 763-753-5236.

Thistle Down Run Update

The Thistle Down Run ride in August is laid out and ready for its second year of running. Participation at our first time event last year was great but as expected, a few minor glitches showed up. Along with welcomed comments from the riders, both pro and con, we have made some changes that still allow us to work with our landowners and the physical location of land parcels. We feel these changes will help streamline the ride and provide a fun course for riders of all levels.

New Trail: We have added over 2 miles of new wooded trail and some re-routing. If you thought you had the route memorized last year, think again.

Scenery: Logging crews showed up this spring in a section of the riding area. They are gone now but they used a bit of our two track trails as logging roads. The wider trail is great but the scenery looks a lot different as we pass through the cut area.

Start: Both loops will now start down same trail and split off after ¼ mile. This will keep all horse traffic going in the same direction, less congestion in the start area, and will keep horses away from car/truck traffic on incoming driveway.

Novice: We've had some questions about the 8 mile novice loop regarding car traffic with new horses and/or riders. We specifically laid this out last year with the novice class in mind. There is no road or ditch riding and it is completely within fenced pastures so in the event of a runaway, they can be found and brought under control.

Camp: Another porta potty will be added to keep walking distance to a minimum.

Vets: No change here as Dr. Anne and Dr. Dean have both committed to this ride. Glad to have them both back on board.

Best Cowboy/Cowgirl Contest: For those who were here last year, you will remember that part of our trail and the campsite are on the "Cowboy's" property. We thought a western theme would be fun but this is a competition and we want everyone to ride safely with their standard riding gear. So with this in mind, the contest will be at the Saturday night potluck. Everyone is eligible to win some valuable prizes so remember to put on your best western outfit when you bring your dish and "Cowboy Up!"

See you on August 16 & 17!

Important Notice re Novice Placings

Dear Ride Managers and novice riders -

When you (ride managers) submit your points for your novice rides, please submit them as one division. UME-CRA rules lump all novice riders together regardless of age and/or weight. If you, as a ride manager, want to award prizes based on age/weight or any other critiera (pinkest mohawk worn by a rider, cleanest horse) the organization doesn't care. But please make sure the riders know their official placing. As novice riders, be aware, if you won a ride as "First Place Novice Heavyweight" there is no such division in the UMECRA novice division, and your actual placing within this Novice division may be lower.

Thanks for putting on & coming to our rides,

The UMECRA Board
